A Common Error

The Same Mistake Is Made by Many Maine People.

It's a common error. To plaster the aching back, To rub with liniments rheumatic joints, When the trouble comes from the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure all kidney ills. Peter McQuade, 49 Park St., Lewiston, Me., says: "I was a sufferer from kidney complaint for many years. It was worse from time to time, some of the attacks being really torture. I used plasters and various medicines but in spite of all my efforts for relief I got so bad that I could not walk for any distance, and was unable to get up or down stairs. Just after I had spent five dollars for a remedy that did me no good, I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills, got a box at a drug store and began using them. In a short time they had done me more good than all the other remedies I had previously used. I am well along in years, and could hardly expect a complete cure, but I am, indeed thankful to have found a remedy that always brings relief. I keep Doan's Kidney Pills on hand all the time and take a few doses occasionally, finding that they keep me in good health."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and no other.

The Telephone Girl.

Some lines written as the result of watching the work of the local telephone operators on a busy circuit. If every user of a phone could spend an hour or so just watching the operators I am inclined to think that most of the grumbling about poor service or delays would cease. During the work of an operator, she becomes a willing volunteer, and individually, simply being merged into the great life of the business world as an unseen and unknown instrument of its necessity. Much is owed her by the community, and the least all may do is to think patiently of her.

I stood by the side of the telephone girls, As they worked at the switchboard to-day, And ceaselessly answered the numerous calls In a seeming mechanical way.

The mid-summer air was relentlessly hot, Yet their fingers like swift snailshells, With serious moment to rest from their work.

Till after the day shift was through, Like parts of a busy machinery, Their lives seemed absorbed in its own, As they quickly connected the wires for each call.

The moment the signal was shown, And even their voices seemed parts of the whole, With the same set response to each call: "Number please," "Did you get them?" "All ready," "Goodbye," thus answered they all.

So give a kind thought to the telephone girl Whenever you're using the phone, And though you may smile at this statement I make, As sure as I've made it to you, If you practice this method whenever you call You will prove by the results that it's true.

Then here's to the true hearted telephone girl; God bless her and smooth out her way, And temper with kindness and patience the Which she must respond to each day.

His Worth.

The worth of a man is generally estimated by his worldly possessions. But it is not with the subject of this article. Whilst his financial condition is almost enviable by his less fortunate acquaintances, his personal and moral worth is much greater, and it inspires a feeling of pride to know that such a man as Bradley, the person referred to in this article, is a Maine man and a citizen of our dear town of Fryeburg.

He was left an orphan in tender years, with a patrimony, which was carefully appropriated for his support and education. His boyhood days were spent in a self-amusing way, with a moral, careful family, and when years had ripened into early manhood, he became the object of much solicitation with young ladies, but the careful, prudent boy thought that his wealth was the attraction, so he played shy and left for work in another town, where, if he were sought, it would be for the interest they might feel in his personality.

True to this impulse, he met a lady who had the independence to earn her own living, and by her industry to support and educate a daughter, who has proven a blessing to her. As time went on, Walter thought that this comely widow would appreciate a home, and he felt sure that he would enjoy a happy home in harmony. She looked upon Walter as being a moral, industrious young man and accepted his offer of marriage.

After they were engaged, Walter went to Norway and bought a lovely home, and had it all furnished, even to the piano. The rooms were fitted up to-date. The stepdaughter was not forgotten. A pleasant room was assigned to her in blue and white. When all was ready, he engaged a lady friend to play hostess, to receive him and his bride.

When he brought her to the elegant house, she demurred. "Walter, do you board here? It must cost a lot. We had better get cheaper lodgings."

"Well, we will see later on."

"The hostess pro tem received them and gave them a fine dinner. "Well, Emma, don't you like it here?"

"Yes, Walter, but it seems extravagant."

"You might as well enjoy a nice place as anybody else."

After dinner, they, with the permission of the landlady, went over the house. The good wife was pleased, but not selfish, of having any place so grand. This pleased Walter, and where he had enjoyed her ignorance of his plot, he said: "I guess we will stay right here for good, for this is our own home, free from debt, so now you can take all the comfort you can get in living here and taking care of me."

"Where did you get the money to pay for such a house?"

"Oh, I didn't steal it. It is my own, so don't worry."

They are a happy couple—I may say family—for the daughter has grown into a noble woman, married to a good, intellectual man, and a grandchild cheers them in their happy home when the daughter spends their vacation with them.

The house stands in the best residential part of the city, and they entertain friends from Maine and other places in a good, common sense way. There are no slaves to fads and fashions. They are independent enough to enjoy life as suits themselves, but free from ignorance and vulgarity. It is a solid home in every sense, and I am proud to know that S. W. Bradley is my much respected cousin, and I know that our mutual friends will be pleased to see this eulogy upon his worth.

The Cooking of Meat.

When preparing a roast for the oven wipe it with a wet cloth and trim off any superfluous ends. If the meat is lamb or mutton look it over carefully for hairs or bits of wool which would impart a strong, disagreeable odor to the meat. As salt tends to draw out juices, it should not be used until the meat is ready to go in the oven—some prefer to wait until it is half done.

Dredge well with flour, then place the meat on a rack in the dripping pan; this allows the heat to reach it from all sides.

Place at once in the oven, which is, of course, at the proper roasting heat. It is well to place some of the trimmings of fat in the bottom of the pan to give an abundance of basting. In 15 minutes draw the pan toward the oven door, and with a large, long-handled spoon dip up some of the liquid fat in the pan and ladle or "baste" it over the meat until as quick as possible, push back the pan and close the oven.

Repeat the basting process every 15 minutes at least, as such frequent basting makes the meat more juicy. Should the oven be so hot that the fat in the pan is in danger of burning, a little boiling water may be added to avert trouble and the heat may then be reduced slightly. Should meat or a projecting bone seem likely to burn, cover with a twist or flat piece of paper.

The time required for roasting varies slightly according to the weight of the meat. For a roast of 12 to 14 pounds, 10 minutes for heating through at first is allowed. Beef needs from 12 to 16 minutes to the pound, according as it is desired rare or well done; mutton is less and pork, and from 20 to 25 minutes a pound is necessary.

When the meat is done, transfer it to a hot platter. Pour off and put aside (for other cooking) all but a couple of tablespoons of the fat in the pan. To what remains add two tablespoons of dry flour and place the pan over the fire, stirring until it is well browned. Gradually add a pint of boiling water, stirring until smoothly thickened. Add seasoning to taste, boil up at once and strain into a boat. This is a good everyday gravy, not a fine sauce.

Edwin J. Whitman.

Edwin J. Whitman whose recent death at his home at Winter Hill, Somerville, Mass., has been chronicled in the newspapers, was a self-made man. He came of good New England stock however. His parents were John and Sarah Deane (Bumpus) Whitman and was born in Hebron, Maine, January 24, 1850. He was seventh in descent from John Whitman the American ancestor, who came about 1685 with his brother, Rev. Zachariah, from the same section of England.

He was the first deacon in the first church in Weymouth and also the first magistrate and the first military officer there. The fact that his brother was a clergyman of the Church of England (he left no posterity) shows that the family must have been, for those times, of some standing and importance in the community in which they lived in the mother country. He died at the age of about 90 and left four sons and five daughters.

The oldest daughter, Sarah, who married Abraham Jones, had a daughter who married Mordecai Lincoln of Hingham, Mass., the great-grandfather of Abraham Lincoln. From Thomas the oldest son of the ancestor John, came Rev. Marcus Whitman, the missionary, who saved the territory of Oregon, now the states of Washington, Oregon and Idaho, to the United States by his famous ride through the Rocky Mountains and went overland in the dead of winter to Washington to lay the matter before the government. Mitchell's history of Bridgewater, Mass., states that more persons of the Whitman name received a college education than any other in that town.

The great-grandfather of Edwin J. Whitman was Jacob Whitman, a Massachusetts minute man of the revolution, who was at Bunker Hill, Long Island, Stony Point, Saratoga and Monmouth.

He was discharged from the Continental army in New Jersey, and had to make his way home to Eastern Massachusetts as best he could. At a farm house where he stopped for something to eat he paid $40 in currency for a bowl of bread and milk.

He settled in Buckfield, Me., where he was given 100 acres of land by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. This old Revolutionary soldier was characterized by love of country, sobriety, morality and sound judgment, qualities which distinguished the ancestor and are seen in all his descendants wherever they have migrated and settled.

Two other of Edwin J. Whitman's great-grandfathers, Jonathan Record, who died in Buckfield at the age of 105 years, and William Bumpus of Hebron, were Revolutionary soldiers.

At an early age Mr. Whitman moved with his parents to Paris, where he received such instruction as the common schools of the times afforded. He then went to Hebron Academy where his education was completed.

At the age of twenty-one he went to Boston and entered a produce and commission business. He was a competent and trustworthy--Eastern boys of good character and habits were then as now prized and sought for in this New England metropolis--and he was promoted till he became a partner in the firm of Torrey, Hibbard & Co., commission merchants, one of the oldest and most reliable business houses on State street. He was vice-president of the corporation at the time of his death.

He was highly respected for his ability and integrity by all who ever did business with him or ever knew him. That he was very successful in a financial way would naturally be expected. He was a member of the Odd Fellows, Chamber of Commerce, Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange, Y. M. C. A. and Winter Hill Baptist Church of which he was deacon. His death is a great loss to the church and Y. M. C. A. in whose prosperity and usefulness he took great interest.

He married Elizabeth Greene of Portland, Me., a most estimable lady, and they have three children, Ruth Lillian Whitman, a senior at Mt. Holyoke College; Ralph Edwin Whitman, a sophomore at Dartmouth College; and Greaves Whitman, now in the senior class of the high school at Somerville.

Mr. Whitman leaves one brother, Laurin A., and two sisters, Mrs. Joseph H. Stuart and Mrs. Joseph J. Jones, who all reside at South Paris.

HIRAM.

Don't Kill the Birds.
The trees are about stripped of their beautiful green leaves in our section and if the insects keep on through August we shall not see any of the beautiful array of an autumn's nature. Just as long as our law allows our birds to be killed for the adorning of ladies' hats just so long we shall be plagued with insects of all kinds. Thousands of robins are killed in the South every winter and eaten.

Freeman Sargent and family have moved to Cornish.

Obadiah Gardner will talk to the people at Hiram, August 11th.

An R. F. D. inspector visited the Hiram post-office this week. He is the first here on that business in five years.

Freedom Wadsworth, who has been poorly for some time, was poisoned by drinking water which came through a lead pipe.

There will be a milk testing demonstration at the farm of Mr. C. I. Lewis, with a Grange dinner and a social time.

The road commissioner will commence on the State road soon, which will be built between the two villages, Hiram and East Hiram.

There is a question arising between Hiram and Brownfield as to who shall pay for fighting Brownfield's big forest fire as both towns were summoned out. We understand Brownfield says Hiram was called on to protect the Lowell brothers' property which was in the path of the fire and in much danger.

Base Ball.

South Paris 19, Paris Hill 0.

South Paris played Paris Hill on the high school grounds Saturday afternoon, with the score resulting as above. The game was arranged to give South Paris a chance to try out its new infield.

Clark pitched a fine game for South Paris. E. Shaw made three of the six hits, being the only member of the Paris Hill team that could do anything with Clark's pitching. The eighth inning was the only one in which Paris Hill seemed likely to score. In this inning two singles and an outfield fly gave them men on second and third, with two outs and Fred Shaw at the bat. Shaw made a great try for a hit, but Berry made a fine one-hand catch of his line drive and spoiled Paris Hill's chance of two runs. Pike's batting was a leading feature of the game. Score:

Norway Municipal Court.

Friday, Otto Hekkinen, a Finlander, was brought into court by Deputy Sheriff W. L. Farrar charged with stabbing Yusi Koibonem at Greenwood, July 22. He pleaded not guilty and the case was continued until Friday, Aug. 7th. The affair apparently started as a wrestling match and Hekkinen, who is a small fellow, was getting beat and on the impulse of the moment pulled a knife and stabbed Koibonem on the arm. The wound had not been attended by a surgeon and when he was in court, Friday, the hand and arm were badly swollen. Examined by a physician it was pronounced in bad condition.

Other improvements have been made on the old lines of pipe and the county buildings are having a large pipe laid to the buildings in order to furnish a better water supply in case of fire. Insurance rates are materially lowered because of the abundant water supply and high pressure.

Not long ago we were breeding dogs in partnership with D. A. Cummings of Rone street. We bought him out and he retired from the dog business to engage in raising sweet corn for the local market. Cummings met us Monday morning, Aug. 3d, and gave us some corn of this year's growth, saying he felt like making us a present as we were once in business together. The corn was accepted with thanks and was all right. He has two or three acres of it and sells it for 25 cents per dozen ears and is making money. I'm in hopes in a short while to be able to tell him over a dog for certainly he is able to keep several.

Base Ball.

Norway lost mainly through slow fielding at critical stages of the game.

While the score shows that West Paris made more hits than Norway, a good many came after chances had been offered to the side. Seven errors tell an eloquent story. A good crowd was present and enjoyed the game.

The two players from away, Harrison and Young, did not show up extra strong either at the bat or in the field, but a ball player should not be judged by his conduct in one particular game. Chapman played a pretty game at first base.

It is understood that manager Leith will have a catcher for the game with Harrison, Saturday, who is used to his style of pitching.

Whatever may be said of Record's umpiring, he evidently gives his decisions as he sees them.

This woman says she was saved from an operation by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lena V. Henry, of Norristown, Ga., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I suffered untold misery from female troubles. My doctor said an operation was the only chance I had, and I dreaded it almost as much as death.

"One day I read how other women had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I decided to try it. Before I had taken the first bottle I was better, and now I am entirely cured."

"Every woman suffering with any female trouble should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

HARRISON.

Many Fairs.
This is a great year for fairs in Harrison. The Grangers started the ball rolling on July 22 and 23. The Grange hall presented a very attractive appearance.

As one entered one saw first the fancy booth which occupied the corner of the hall and was presided over by Mrs. Lucia Lakin and Eleanor Chute. This booth was decorated in the national colors and the young ladies were in white gowns with red and blue ribbons. Among the articles on the table were noted several handsome sofa pillows, especially a hand painted one, which were told was the work of Mrs. Etta Moulton. Mrs. Effie Pitts and Ethel Thomas were doing a fancy sewing business in candies, home-made and preserved. Lilla S. and May Purinton sold lemonade at a pretty little stand decorated in lemon and white. At the upper end of the hall Mrs. W. H. Briggs and Mrs. Lilla Marr presided at a table of miscellaneous articles. Here one could purchase anything from a paper of tacks to a quilt.

Mrs. Gertrude Foster sold aprons and Kate Cushman handkerchiefs. Mrs. Lizzie Howard and other ladies sold ice cream. A album quilt made by Mrs. James Thomas attracted much attention. It was made of red and white in the "Dewey" pattern and contained 100 names. The fair was well patronized both days and was a financial success.

It ended with a social dance, Thursday evening, for which the Dean girls of South Paris furnished the music.

On the 20th and 30th the Library Association held a fair in the Grange hall. This was of more wide-spread interest perhaps than the one of the preceding week, inasmuch as the whole town is interested in the library.

The general committee in charge of the arrangements was Mrs. Cora Denison, Mrs. Anna Whitney and Mrs. Anna Drury. They had a large corps of assistants and the result was very pleasing to the public and satisfactory to the association. Every booth deserved special mention and it would be hard to say which was prettiest and most artistic.

The food table was in pink and white and here Mrs. O. A. Kneeland and Miss Bennett sold home-made jellies and preserves as well as all kinds of cooked foods. The apron table was decorated in white and emerald green and trimmed with nasturtiums, and was presided over by Nellie Plummer. Ethel Whitney sold lemonade at a dainty stand. Mrs. Willson and Mrs. Waller had handkerchiefs of all kinds and prices. Their colors were blue and white.

A five and ten cent table was presided over by Mrs. Anna Dudley and Mrs. Ada Chapman. This booth was elaborately decorated with goldenrod. The fancy table was in charge of Mrs. Cora Denison and Mrs. Anna Whitney. It was decorated in red and white. The center of the hall was occupied by a Mexican booth arranged by Mrs. D. H. Caswell. This was decorated in the Mexican colors and contained elaborate specimens of the beautiful drawn-work. Mrs. Caswell was assisted at this table by Josephine and Jessie Ricker and May Pitts.

There was a pleasing entertainment given each evening, the first by the guests at the Harrison House and the second by the Grange orchestra from Bridgton. The net proceeds from this fair will be nearly $500, which will be applied toward the new library building now being erected.

The ladies of the Congregational circle will take their turn next with a fair at their vestry on Wednesday afternoon and evening of this week.

If you own a dog, do not forget that this is the season when it needs plenty of water. In England drinking troughs are provided in every city and town of any size in front of stores, along the curb and in public squares, for dogs and birds. As a result there are almost no cases of rabies reported. Just what a dog suffering from thirst does here in our city where there are no drinking troughs is shown by the fact that several dogs have been killed by drinking from the water troughs of the city.

The Mayberry stock farm is located in the town of Casco and contains 200 acres of fertile land. The owner, C. C. Mayberry of Boston, has recently purchased the track and horse sheds at Little River park and will at once begin to put the grounds into first class shape. The track will be worked and scraped and several races will probably be held in summer and fall. Ira B. Page, Sept., is joggling a large number of horses and colts and all are in fine condition. Everything about the place is in good condition and the barns are neat and clean. The breeding establishment and we know the people appreciate it.

Education Concerning Teeth.

As far back as the days of my attendance at the primary school the use of a toothbrush and the care of the teeth were urged on the tiny scholars who sat in the little chairs. Some of them wondered at the teacher's speak of a matter which had been a custom with them since they acquired their first teeth. I know that I did. Others, I am confident, first heard of the existence of a toothbrush through the teacher, and if not old enough then to take advantage of her teachings, eventually made the daily cleansing of the teeth a part of their ablutions.

Nearly everybody, all children included, ought to know more about their teeth than they do. We have all been advised of the desirability of brushing them after each meal. We have heard that cracking nuts between them is dangerous, for we may crack a tooth instead of the nut or at the same time. Warnings against snipping threads because of the harm it does the enamel of the teeth may have been leveled at us countless times and the discomfort and pain of a cavity is all the cautioning we should require when our teeth decay and are in need of attention. But what we do not know about our teeth and what we suffer from ignorance combined with neglect will fill a book, and there is need of deeper knowledge of what benefits them and what serves to destroy them.

"Candy is injurious to the teeth," says the mother when her offspring's appetite for sweets of this variety stretch beyond the limit of the family purse. Candy in quantity is as candy of a cane. Candy may be very injurious to the teeth, yet there are many other things that people eat freely that are every bit as hurtful as the one or two things which are generally recognized as harmful.

Many foods which are relished by people injure the teeth. Certain foods make the teeth of certain people decay very quickly, and therefore a knowledge of the acids that predominate in these foods and cause harm to the teeth is important in their preservation as visiting the dentist every so often. The condition of the blood, the stomach and other organs of the body have their effect on the teeth. Often the teeth show impoverished blood, a disarranged condition of the stomach and a general condition of the body. The system before it can be traced to its rightful source. Did we know something about the injuries to the teeth which arise from conditions within us, and what we may do to avoid them, the general condition of the body, the world would be vastly improved. This the pamphlets which the National Association of Dentists may furnish to the public schools should contain, for it is a subject of which even the person who gives much thought to the care of his teeth is quite ignorant.—[Boston Journal.

Hanging in a Barn.

Despondent because of a prolonged and incurable illness, John A. Page of West Minot took his life by hanging Saturday morning. For three years Mr. Page had suffered with a heart trouble and cancer on the lip, though he had not been confined to the house. For the last few days his family had noticed that his mind seemed slightly affected. About 8 o'clock Saturday morning he got up from the couch, took his hat and went out of doors. A few minutes later, feeling a little anxious because of his failing health, his wife went in search of him. Soon after she called her could find him. She said that she could find him. The son went out and about half past eight found the dead body of his father hanging in the barn. Mr. Page had stretched a rope between a ladder and a beam and in that place, deliberately arranged by him, ended his life.

The French mode of the eighteenth century, known to fame and to dressmakers and tailors as the Directoire, will undoubtedly dominate the styles of the coming autumn.

The Turkish veil, which for ages has hidden the traditional beauty of the Turkish women, has been torn away in the wreck of the old regime and, according to dispatches received from Turkey, thousands of unveiled women are parading the streets, rejoicing in their new found freedom.

The innovation, the most startling in the history of the Ottoman empire, is being welcomed by the men, who cheer the unveiled woman at every opportunity. The whole outward appearance of the empire has been changed. On every hand the smiling faces are seen instead of the somber veils that hid them.

The most remarkable feature of the political upheaval in Turkey which has just resulted in the granting of a constitution by the sultan, has been the participation of hundreds of thousands of women who emerged from the privacy of harems, tore off their veils and marched bravely through the streets. The first women to abandon their veils were those of Monastir, the hot bed of the revolution. The command of the Koran that women should appear veiled was canceled by a Moslem priest who issued his proclamation from the mosque.

"We will help to make the world beautiful by this act," the priest declared. Many remarkable scenes greeted the radical change, but without exception the innovation is approved.

Clerical Collars.

Clerical collars which fit closely around the throat and button at the back are the latest inspirations of the people who believe that their mission in this world is to dress the necks of the multitude. They are of white and colored linen, made very stiff and high, similar to those worn by the clergy, and to some women are immensely becoming. They look especially well with tailored shirts waists and runabout suits, and are in line with the band-trimmed hat hats.

With anything of the lingerie or Directoire order they are, of course, out of the question. In the class with the clerical collars are the tailored white linen stocks finished with duty tabs and tiny pearl buttons, but they may also be worn with the plainer types of lingerie waists—meaning those without yokes—and serve to lend a fresh appearance to a blouse which has been worn several days in succession.

Went Out on the Water.

As this is the season for outings at the shore or on the water, it is also the season of sunburn.

This first touch of sunburn is not to be laughed at. It is a painful thing. After a while, when the face has become injured to the effect of sun or water, the skin will not rebel in such an inconvenient manner.

The man or woman who goes out for a day on the water should not be above the action of the sun. A good cream should be rubbed into the skin of the face and hands, if the latter are exposed, and a pure rice or talcum powder dusted over this.

It is a good plan to take along some powder in a pocket and when the face begins to burn put it on. Plain flour is as preventive and as healing as powder.

How to Keep Water Cold.

"Having tried it, I recommend the following mode of keeping ice water for a long time in a common pitcher," says a writer in Woman's Home Companion. "Place between two sheets of thick brown paper a layer of cotton batting about half an inch in thickness; fasten the ends of the paper and batting together, forming a circle, then sew or paste a crown over one end, making the shape of a stovepipe hat minus the top. Place this over an ordinary pitcher filled with ice water, making it deep enough to rest on the table so as to exclude the air, and you will be astonished to see the length of time that the ice will keep and the water remain cold after all the ice has melted." Till you can make one of these devices just wrap a few old newspapers around the ice pitcher.

Some Improvements at Fryeburg Academy.

Students and friends of Fryeburg Academy are much interested in the extensive improvements now being made at the famous old Academy hall. When the morning of Sept. 8, the school assemblies for the first chapel of its one hundred and seventeenth year, it will be in a practically new building. The outer wall will be the same, the interior will be new. It is characteristic of the trustees of Fryeburg that what they undertake they do thoroughly. Tobias L. Eastman, the head of the committee which has this work in charge, states that they intend to leave nothing undone which will tend to make this building attractive, safe and substantial.

As one will enter through doors that, like all others in the building, open outward, he will come into a spacious hall over twice as large as the former one. On either side this a broad flight of stairs leads to the assembly hall above. Here the new steel walls and ceiling will be painted some pleasing tint, new hard wood floors will be laid, and in fact the hall will be made one of the most attractive school halls in New England. On the first floor are to be two large class rooms and a principal's room. The toilet rooms are to be thoroughly remodeled, making them large, clean and hygienic.

The chemistry and physics laboratories are to be installed in the Ward house where they will occupy separate rooms. The apparatus is now being put into order and established in the cabinets provided for that purpose.

Learn to Swim.

More than one-half the drownings reported from the summer resorts are young persons who have never learned to swim. The art of swimming is easily acquired, especially by children. Those who have mastered it declare that life has few more pleasurable sensations than that which creeps over the body at play in the water. Every muscle is brought into activity, and the man or woman tastes the joy of pure animal sport.

TO CURE NEURALGIA.

Necessary to Treat Nerves Both Internally and Externally.

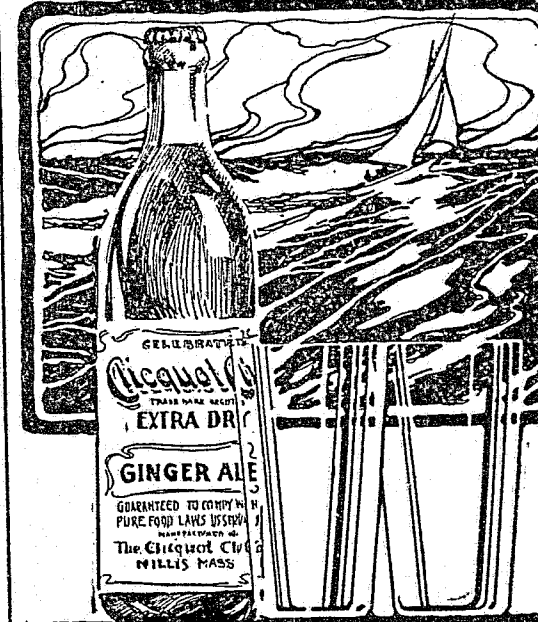

Neuralgia is a disease of the nerves, and to give immediate relief to the pain and effect a complete cure, it is necessary to use both internal and external treatments. This explains the remarkable success of Neuralgic Anodyne in curing neuralgia, no matter how acute or long standing.

It gets right at the nerve centers. A small dose is taken internally, thus soothing and quieting the whole nervous system. At the same time, a little is rubbed on the affected part and passes through the pores of the skin to the aching tissues, giving relief to the distressing pains.

A 25c bottle of Neuralgic Anodyne will do a world of good. It cures neuralgia, headache, toothache, and in fact all aches and pains where the nerves, muscles and tissues are affected and aching.

Large bottle for $50. Money returned if it does not cure. The Twitchell-Clampin Co., Portland, Me.

Two Elderly Ladies.

Mrs. Charlotte M. Stanwood passed to the higher life on July 15, aged 82 years. She was a native of this village.

She was early married. Albert Stanwood and she lived together for many years. She resided during twenty years of her married life. Being widowed she came back to her old home with her young family about forty-six years ago and continued her residence to the day of her decease. With a fine constitution she enjoyed excellent health until about five years ago, when she became an invalid, and was from that time the special object of the care and nursing of one of her married daughters, Mrs. Kate Hardy of Boston, who with her husband came here to reside during the years of her waning life.

Mrs. Stanwood was a woman of cultivated intellect and of most estimable character beloved by all who ever knew her. Her husband predeceased her twelve years. Of nine children two of whom died in childhood and two in mature life there survive the mother five daughters—Mrs. Eugene Nelson, Mrs. C. Hardy, Mrs. Frank Noble, Mrs. Irving Bell of Waterford, and Mrs. Albert M. Murphy of Green Bay, Wis. The obsequies were at the family residence and were attended by Rev. Mr. Markley of the United Methodist Church in Elmvale cemetery.

The interment was in Elmvale cemetery.

Mrs. Mary Howard passed to the higher life, Aug. 1, aged 87 years, 7 months, 4 days. She was a native of Warren, Knox county, and daughter of Charles and Catherine Smith. At the age of 21 she married William York of Naples, by whom she had four children, three of whom survive her, Elsie, Mrs. Mary E. Young of Lewiston and Charles W. York of Auburn.

Howard of Hiram by whom she had five sons, three of whom died in childhood the survivors being J. Frank Howard of Waterford and Lewis N. Howard of North Bridgton.

It is a notable occurrence that three generations of her descendants were present on the day of the funeral service, which was solemnized on Monday, Aug. 3, at 2 p. m., by Mr. Guy V. Aldrich, pastor of the United congregation during the present summer.

Mrs. Howard possessed a hardy constitution and had almost uninterrupted good health during her long married life, until about twenty years ago, since when she has been afflicted with rheumatism, which has been the object of much solicitude from her friends. Her last sickness was very painful until a day or two before her decease. The close of her life was peaceful and free from suffering.

She was an affectionate wife and mother and a kind and esteemed neighbor. In her youth she was identified with the Free Baptists, and though not a church member was always a friend of religion and Christian institutions. The tokens of kindly remembrance displayed in floral offerings at her funeral were numerous and beautiful, the most conspicuous being a large pillow of water lilies; also a floral piece composed of 87 lilies, that being the number of years of her age. Of her own ancestral family one brother survives her, Philip M. Kallach of Thomaston, aged 77 years. The interment was in Elmvale.

Grange Improve Their Property.

The most interesting event of the week to our citizens is the completion of repairs and decorative improvements to the village hall, under the management of the executive committee of Bear Mountain Grange, the owners of the hall.

The scheme of improvement consisted in the erection of a steel ceiling, wainscoting, papering and painting the hall and ante-rooms, which has been accomplished in a workmanlike and satisfactory manner. The ceiling, one of the modern innovations, was put up by Oscar Y. Edwards, master-workman, assisted by Charles Whitcomb, Alvin Brown and William Kingman, W. K. Hamlin overseeing the work for the committee. The ceiling is painted in a cerulean or azure that, the curved cornice being of darker shades of blue. It was done by Wm. Kingman, who also hung all the paper on hall, ante-rooms and stairway, assisted by Mrs. Kingman.

The doors of hall and ladies' ante-room are grained in imitation of native oak, the panels being simulations of curly and birds-eye maple. They were executed by Granville Fernald, who also assisted in other parts of the repair work.

The Grange, while seized by the mania for renovating and improving its public properties, has caused its store to be painted in brilliant colors, and we notice handsome gilded signs decorating the front. The painting was done by Charles Haskell, and the signs well, Loton V. Flint, the commercial agent of the Grange, was the guilty man.

Mrs. Edith Watson Haynes of Canister, N. Y., is spending the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Watson.

Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Thompson, Jr., Louis Heydacker and Bessie Beasly of Hyde Park, Mass., are guests of Mrs. Augusta Monroe for two weeks.

Mrs. Louise Grimes and family of West Medford, Mass., recently visiting the family of her mother, Mrs. Henry Billings, have returned to their home.

Edwin Stone of Washington, D. C., is a guest of Leon York and family this summer for the fifth year. Mr. Stone is a musician of much experience, a very proficient student and brilliant player on the flute.

Stephen Caswell, a former resident of this village, for a number of years past residing in Wakefield, Mass., is a recent visitor to his old friends here making his principal stay with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Billings.

Almon R. Tobey of Sawtelle, Los Angeles Co., Cal. is visiting his old army comrade, Henry Billings. They were both members of Co. 9th Maine regiment in the Civil war. Comrade Tobey enlisted from Whitefield.

Recent arrivals of summer guests at Frank Noble's—Helen and Marguerite Briggs and Ruth Kirkland of Pittsburg, Pa.; D. H. McWain of Newton, Mass.; Grace Yeaton and Phyllis Swasey of Winchester, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Webster of Reading, Mass.

Bear Mountain Grange assembled in force on Saturday evening. Much surprise and admiration for the substantial improvements of the hall and adjacent rooms since the last meeting were expressed. The applications of two candidates were received. An interesting discussion on a question postponed from a former meeting occurred. Whether Americans of the present day are as patriotic as were their forefathers. The debate was participated in by Brothers Fernald, W. K. Hamlin and L. E. McInerney. The "Poverty Social" being a regular order, a number of young ladies and gentlemen appeared in costumes the reverse of stylish or elegant, causing much amusement and curiosity at the possible resources for supply of old clothes. The subject of Field Day elicited some discussion, resulting in the decision to hold that important summer festival on August 22, at the "Perry woods" near Mutiny brook. If that day stormy the picknickers will meet at Grange hall.

Mrs. Clara A. Ames.

Mrs. Clara A. Ames, an aged and life-long resident of Norway, passed away at her home on Cottage street, Friday, Aug. 7th, at the age of 81 years, 3 months, 11 days. Mrs. Ames was the daughter of Timothy and Alice Smith and was born in Norway, Feb. 20, 1827. She received her education in the Norway common schools. In religious belief she was a Universalist.

Feb. 1847 she married Edmund Ames, living, Harry T. Ames of Auburn, George M. Ames of Norway, and Mrs. Charles Scribner of Otisfield. There are nine grandchildren.

The funeral services were held at the residence, Sunday, attended by Rev. C. A. Brooks. Mrs. Frank Kimball sang two beautiful solos.

Mrs. Ames was one who would sacrifice herself for others and was respected by friends and neighbors. She had been a great deal of sickness in her family and she tenderly cared for them all until they departed where sickness and sorrow were no more. Her husband died six years ago and she has kept her home since then aged and in ill health. She was only a few days and tenderly cared for by her daughter.

A New Electric Light.

George H. Bennett has something new in the electric light line. It's a simple, inexpensive arrangement and gives satisfactory results. It consists only of four automobile electric batteries from which a small electric light is wired. The light is equal to about one-half that furnished by an ordinary kerosene lamp.

The one he has is about midway his carriage repository and furnishes light so that one can see to walk about safely in the room. This new light is an idea of F. H. Beck's, the automobile man.

H. J. Bangs is to have a chain enclosure about his residence.

George Thompson went to Old Orchard on the excursion, Sunday.

George H. Bennett, carriage and sign painter, gives a generous sample of apples raised last year. The apples, several varieties came from the farm of Oscar Cox, who may be termed a successful "garden farmer." Mr. Bennett says he is to change over his repository for carriages so as to care for automobiles.

This is what a reader says of a recent copy of the ADVERTISER:—"I see that Arling Huntress went to church last Sunday. That will do to go with the other items of my recollection that James
